

Tomaž Mihelin Ritlop has been working in public relations field for the last ten years and was collaborating with almost 100 international and local communication projects, especially from energetic, ecology and tourism field. He has graduated on Faculty of Economics and Business in Maribor. His work was awarded with numerous international prizes, mentioning just two of them: prize of International public relations association (IPRA) and United States prize for the best world communication project for humanitarian activities support. He is lecturer in London School of Public Relation in South-East Europe, periodically he lectures like a guest on CISEF, Cranfield University, Faculty of Economics and Business in Maribor and professional meetings at home, as well as in foreign countries. Tomaž coauthor of handbook Crisis Communication and Risk Management and book Lobbying is hot and author of many professional articles.